Welcome to AIRAPT26

The International Association for the Advancement of High Pressure Science and Technology (AIRAPT) has been meeting once every two years since 1955. Originating in the seminal findings of Prof. P.W. Bridgman, high pressure science has taken an increasingly important role in a wide range of fields such as physics, chemistry, materials science, earth & planetary science, natural resources & the environment, energy, biology, food science, etc. leading to new forefronts of interdisciplinary research that provide new knowledge of nature as well as driving sustainable development of our society. The Asian Conference on High Pressure Research (ACHPR) has convened scientists every second year since the 2000 meeting in Dunhuang of China (1st), followed by Nara of Japan (2nd), Lijiang of China (3rd), Seoul of Korea (4th), Matsue of Japan (5th), Beijing of China (6th) and Bangkok of Thailand (7th). ACHPR originates from the early bilateral meetings between China and Japan on high pressure science in 1990s. ACHPR expressly offers a forum for the high pressure research community in Asia as well as for international researchers. The China High Pressure Conference (CHPC) debuted in 1978 and is held every two years, providing a platform to share the progress in high pressure research in China.

AIRAPT 26 will be staged in combination with both ACHPR 8 and CHPC 19. We really feel honored to invite you to attend the three together. We are doing our best to make the conference productive, encouraging and inspiring.

Come to share your research updates with the community around the world, as well as to enjoy Beijing: a beautiful modern city with a long history and rich culture! Looking forward to meeting you in Beijing in August 2017!
